New AA-T Available in Geography

The CCC and CSU systems have added Geography as a new associate of arts for transfer (AA-T). You

ANTHROPOLOGY

What rituals do people in other cultures practice? What does the fossil record tell us about how humans evolved? Why were ancient temples and pyramids built by past peoples? These are the kinds of topics that anthropologists explore—what it means to be human. Anthropology covers evolution and archaeology, so if you like a broad perspective on human history, this is the major for you!

Anthropology integrates a wide array of disciplines including biology, psychology, geography and history. It prepares students to work with people from many backgrounds. A transfer degree will set students on a path to careers in business, international relations, medicine and health, service industries, human resources, cultural resource management, and biological sciences.
